

Notes on the Contributors

Łukasz Bertram is a sociologist currently working on his PhD thesis about the political elite of Polish Stalinism, at the Institute of Sociology of the University of Warsaw. Among his interest are sociology of power and elites, history of the Communist states, politics of memory, Polish historical cinema, and sociology of religion. He is the author of the book Wyroodne dzieci nowoczesności. Indultowi tradycjoniści katoliccy w Warszawie [Wayward Children of Modernity. Indult Catholic Traditionalists in Warsaw] (Gdańsk 2016).

e-mail: lukaszbertram@gmail.com

Ștefan Bosomitu is researcher at the Institute for the Investigation of Communist Crimes and the Memory of the Romanian Exile since 2007. PhD in History (2011) from the Faculty of History, “Alexandru Ioan Cuza” University of Iași, with a thesis on the political biography of Miron Constantinescu. Main fields of interests: the interwar history of communist parties, the biographies of the communist leaders, history of sciences during socialism. Relevant publications: Miron Constantinescu. O biografie [Miron Constantinescu. A Biography], Bucharest, Humanitas, 2014; Spectrele lui Dej. Incursiuni în biografia și regimul unui dictator [Specters of Dej. The Biography and Regime of a Dictator], Iași: Polirom, 2012 (co-coordinator, with Mihai Burcea).

e-mail: stefan.bosomitu@gmail.com

Jan Burek is a PhD researcher at the European University Institute. He received his MA in History from the University of Warsaw in 2014. He now works on his doctoral thesis on continuities and ruptures in the history of workers' protest in Żyrardów, Poland. His main areas of interests are labour history, memory studies and intersections of anthropology and history.

e-mail: jan.burek@eui.eu

Anna Carr holds an MA in Literature (National University of “Kyiv-Mohyla Academy”) and a PhD in International Studies from Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia; her thesis title is “National Narrative in Ukrainian Historical Novels: From Post-Stalinist to Post-Independence Texts.” She is affiliated with the National University of “Kyiv-Mohyla Academy”, Ukraine, where she conducts research on Post-Stalinist texts in Ukrainian literature, with the main focus on representations of the body in historical novels. Currently in Prague, she works with the Slovanska Knihovna (Slavic library) funds and archives. Other research interests include the narratives of minorities, psychoanalysis as a research method, postcolonial interpretations of Ukrainian literature, and gender implications of Soviet culture.

e-mail: annayucarr@gmail.com

Alexander Fokin has a PhD in History and is Associate Professor of the Department of the History of Russia and Foreign Countries, Chelyabinsk State University and Associate Professor of the Department of Russian as a Foreign Language South Ural State University (national research university). Since 2008 he has been a member of several teaching and research grants: member of a grant project under the Federal Targeted Program Research and Scientific-Pedagogical Personnel of Innovative Russia in 2009–2013, in 2012 he was a winner of Vladimir Potanin’s Scholarship program for young teachers, in 2013 and 2017 grants from the German Historical Institute Moscow for university teachers, in 2014 a grant by the President of the Russian Federation for young scientists, and in 2017 winner of the Karamzin Scholarship of the Prokhorov Foundation. Most recent publications: Fokin A.A. “Notebooks of the Verkhneuralsk political isolator: presentation of the source and reflection on its meaning”, Ab imperio. 2017. No. 4. pp. 177-194; Fokin A.A. “Communism is not far off: images of the future in power and the population of the USSR 1950-1960.” Moscow, 2017; Fokin A. “Kulturangelegenheiten auf den KPdSU-Parteitag der 1960er und 1970er Jahre” in Hochkultur für das Volk? Literatur, Kunst und Musik in der Sowjetunion aus kulturgeschichtlicher Perspektive. Munich. 2018. pp. 117-136.

e-mail: aafokin@yandex.ru

Kristen Ghodsee is professor of Russian and East European Studies at the University of Pennsylvania. She is the author of seven books, including: The Red Riviera: Gender, Tourism and Postsocialism on the Black Sea (Duke University Press, 2005), Muslim Lives in Eastern Europe: Gender, Ethnicity and the Transformation of Islam in Postsocialist Bulgaria (Princeton University Press 2009), Lost In Transition: Ethnographies of Everyday Life After Communism (Duke University Press 2011), The Left Side of History: World War II and the Unfulfilled Promise of Communism in Eastern Europe (Duke University Press 2015), and Red Hangover: Legacies of 20th Century Communism (Duke University Press, 2017). Ghodsee’s articles and essays have appeared in publications such as the Dissent, Foreign Affairs, Jacobin Magazine, Aeon, and The New York Times. She has held residential fellowships at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, New Jersey; at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard University; at the Freiburg Institute for Advanced Studies in Germany; and at the Aleksanteri Institute of the University of Helsinki in Finland.

In 2012, she was awarded a John Simon Guggenheim Fellowship in Anthropology and Cultural Studies.

email: ghodseek@sas.upenn.edu

Ágota Lídia Ispán is a research fellow at the Research Centre for the Humanities, the Institute of Ethnology, the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. She holds a PhD in Historical Science from Eötvös Loránd University (2015). The title of her PhD dissertation is “The Countryside of the Town. Lifestyle change of the rural society after 1945 under the influence of urbanization”. Important publications: Cultured Way of Life Depicted in the Hungarian-Language Press. In Dagnosław Demski, Anelia Kassabova, Ildikó Sz. Kristóf, Liisi Lineste, Kamila Baraniecka-Olszewska (Ed.): The Multi-mediatised Other: The Construction of Reality in East-Central Europe 1945-1980. Budapest: L’Harmattan, 2017. 326-355; “It’s hard to do your duty here.” Cultured Retail Trade in Hungary. In Sorin Radu, Cosmin Bundeanca (Ed.): Countryside and Communism in Eastern Europe: Perceptions, Attitudes, Propaganda. LIT Verlag, 2016.

e-mail: ispan18@yahoo.com

Natalia Jarska is historian and works at the Institute of History of Polish Academy of Sciences in Warsaw. Her publications include the books: Kobiety z marmuru. Robotnice w Polsce w latach 1945-1960 [Women of marble. Female blue-collar workers in Poland in the years 1945-1960] (Warsaw, 2015); Idealne kobiety. Sekcja Kobięca Falangi 1934-1950 [“Ideal women”. The women’s Section of the Spanish Falanx 1934-1950] (Lublin, 2011); Płeć buntu. Kobiety w oporze społecznym i opozycji w Polsce w latach 1944-1989 na tle porównawczym [The gender of revolt. Women in popular resistance and political opposition in Poland 1944-1989: a comparative perspective], eds. Natalia Jarska and Jan Olaszek, (Warsaw, 2014), and articles: “Frauen in den kommunistischen Parteien PPR/PZPR – die Paradoxe der Frauenpolitik 1945-1960“, Jahrbuch für Historische Kommunismusforschung, 2015

e-mail: njarska@ihpan.edu.pl

Iva Jelusić is currently PhD Student in Comparative History at Central European University in Budapest, Hungary. She holds an AM in European Women’s and Gender History at Central European University. Previous professor of History and Philosophy at Faculty of Philosophy, Rijeka, Croatia.

e-mail: Jelusic_Iva@phd.ceu.edu

Luciana M. Jinga holds a PhD in History from Al. I. Cuza University in Iași and Université d'Angers, 2011. She is currently affiliated to TEMOS (Temps, Mondes, Sociétés - CNRS FRE 2015, Universités d'Angers, Bretagne Sud, Le Mans). Her main area of research is the evolution and characteristics of the communist regimes in Central and Eastern Europe with a clear focus on gender related research and traumatic childhood. Other research interests: History of science. Most recent publications: "Women in the Communist Party: Debunking a (Post) Communist Mythology", in Claudia-Florentina Dobre, Cristian Emilian Ghiță (eds.), Quest for a suitable past. Myths and Memory in Central and Eastern Europe, CEU Press, 2016, pp. 85-100; "Copilărie și abandon familial în România anilor '80" [Childhood and abandonment in 1980's Romania], in Nicoleta Roman (coord.), Copilăria românească între familie și societate (secolele XVII-XX) [Romanian childhood between family and society (XVII-XX century)], București, Nemira, 2015, pp. 314-242.

e-mail: mia.jinga@gmail.com

Rachele Ledda is a PhD Student in International Studies at the University of Naples L'Orientale. She graduated from the University of Pisa with a degree in history. Her research interests are women's history in global perspective, history of contemporary Italy and environmental history.

e-mail: rledda@unior.it

Graziano Mamone is Doctor of Philosophy in Contemporary History. He is working with the Ligurian Archives of Popular Writing of Genoa, the Institute of Postal Historic Studies of Prato and he is a Member of the Historic Institute of Resistance and Contemporary Era of Imperia. He is a teacher and a researcher at the University of Genoa, Learning Sciences Department. He has recently published Guerra alla Grande Guerra. La galassia dissidente tra Basso Piemonte, Liguria di Ponente e Provenza. 1914-1918 (Fusta, 2016); Soldati italiani in Libia. Trauma, scrittura, memoria. 1911-1912 (Unicopli, 2016).

e-mail: graziano.mamone@economia.unige.it

Julia Mead is a PhD student in history at the University of Chicago. Her research is focused on state socialism, gender, and coal mining. Previously, she was a freelance journalist and a reporter-researcher at New York magazine. Her writing has appeared in The Nation, Catalyst, New York and elsewhere. She studied at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine.

e-mail: juliamead@uchicago.edu

Agnieszka Mroziak is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Literary Research of the Polish Academy of Sciences since 2012. She is affiliated with two research teams: the Centre for Cultural and Literary Studies of Communism, and the Archives of Women. She holds a PhD in Literary Studies (2012) and an MA in American Studies (2005). Since 2008, she has been teaching feminist criticism, media discourse and popular culture analysis at the Postgraduate Gender Studies Program at the Institute of Literary Research of the Polish Academy of Sciences. She is the author of the monograph Akuszerki transformacji. Kobiety, literatura i władza w Polsce po 1989 roku [Midwives of the Transformation. Women, Literature and Power in Post-1989 Poland (2012)].

e-mail: akmrozik@gmail.com

Iemima Ploscariu holds a Master of Letters in Central and East European Studies from the University of St Andrews and a Master of Arts in Comparative History from Central European University. She is a PhD student at Dublin City University, Ireland. Her work on Romanian history and religious minorities was previously published in Sprawy Narodowościowe, Australian Slavonic and East European Studies, and Kesher.
e-mail: iploscariu@gmail.com