

Notes on the Contributors

Stefan-Marius Deaconu holds a PhD in History at the University of Bucharest. He is currently a lecturer at the Faculty of History, University of Bucharest. He was a fellow at the Institute for the Investigation of Communist Crimes and the Memory of the Romanian Exile (IICCMER) in 2016 and completed an internship at the Open Society Archives in Budapest, Hungary, in 2017. His areas of interest include higher education in the post-war period, the economic analysis of communist regimes and the dynamics of social mobility in communist societies. His latest publication: Ștefan Marius Deaconu, Alina Roiniță, Ascending the Social Ladder: Exploring Professional Advancement and Employability Among First-Generation Graduates, in European Higher Education Area 2030: Bridging Realities for Tomorrow's Higher Education, Cham, Springer International Publishing, 2025 (https://link.springer.com/chapter/10.1007/978-3-031-75140-0_21). E-mail: stefan-marius.deaconu@istorie.unibuc.ro

Dr. Darryl Hill holds a Ph.D. from the University of Windsor (Canada). He is a Canadian-American Professor in the psychology departments of the College of Staten Island and the Graduate Center, at the City University of New York, in New York City. He teaches in the Psychology and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies programs, and has taught students in the U.S., Canada, Russia, and Ukraine. He has published in the Journal of Sex Research, Sexuality and Disability, the International Journal of Transgenderism, and the Journal of the History of Sexuality, among others, and he is author of three books, Trans Toronto: An Oral History, About Psychology - an edited collection of essays on the history and philosophy of psychology, and A History and Sociology of the Willowbrook State School, a historical and sociological analysis of disability, sexuality, and race. E-mail: Darryl.hill@csi.cuny.edu

Anna Horstmann holds a Ph.D. from Ruhr University Bochum, Chair of Social History and Social Movements. She was a fellow of the Gerda Henkel

Foundation, and her dissertation “Women in the Laboratory: Female Chemists and Laboratory Assistants in German Chemical Companies from 1900 to 1990” was awarded the Max Weber Prize for Young Researchers by the University of Erfurt. She is currently a temporary academic counsellor at Bielefeld University. Her research focuses on the social history of the 20th century, with a particular emphasis on labour and war from a gender history perspective. Her latest publication is: Horstmann, Anna and Llanos-Reyes, Claudio. 2025. “From the policy of humanization to labour flexibilization: the case of the Federal Republic of Germany from the 1970s to the 1980s”. Labor History, 1–17. <https://doi.org/10.1080/0023656X.2025.2477149>.
E-mail: anna.horstmann@uni-bielefeld.de

Luciana M. Jinga holds a Ph.D. in History from the University of Angers. She is currently a researcher, expert at the Institute for the Investigation of Communist Crimes and the Memory of the Romanian Exile, and associate professor at the University of Bucharest. She is a gender historian, researching women as political actors during the Romanian socialist regime, demography, child abandonment, malfunctions of the child care system, children with disabilities, humanitarian aid. Her latest publication is: “Ana Pauker (1893-1960): The Infamous Romanian Woman Communist Leader”, The Palgrave Handbook of Communist Women Activists around the World, Francesca de Haan (ed.), Palgrave MacMillan, 2023, (with Stefan Bosomitu).
E-mail: mia.jinga@gmail.com

Irina Nastasă-Matei holds a Ph.D. in History from the Babes-Bolyai University in Cluj-Napoca. She is a historian and political scientist working on transnational networks of education and science, in the context of authoritarian regimes. She is currently Senior Lecturer at the Department of Political Science, University of Bucharest. Her most recent research topics cover the history of women in science, public health communication during the Romanian socialist regime, academic and scientific exchanges during the Cold War, as well as the transnational far right. Her most recent publications are: Amelia Bonea and Irina Nastasă-Matei (eds.), Negotiating In/visibility: Women, Science, Engineering and Medicine in the Twentieth Century (Manchester University Press, 2025); Camelia Crăciun, Irina Nastasă-Matei, Valentin Săndulescu, Francisca Solomon, Yiddish Culture in Greater Romania, 1918–1940 (CEU Press, 2025).
E-mail: irina.matei@fspub.unibuc.ro

Cristiana Oghină-Pavie holds a Ph.D. in History from University of Iasi and University of Angers. She is currently associate professor of contemporary history at the University of Angers (France). Her research focuses on the history of plants in the 19th and 20th centuries, particularly the relationship between life sciences and experiential knowledge in horticulture. She conducts interdisciplinary research in history and genetics on the historical construction of crop diversity. She co-directs the Plants in Society Chair at the University of Angers Foundation and is former president of the Society for the History and Epistemology of Life Sciences. Her latest publication is: C.Oghina-Pavie & al., “A herbarium of roses in early 19th century at the crossroad between botany and horticulture: interwoven networks, entangled curiosities “, in Dynamis, Acta Hispanica ad Medicinae Scientiarumque Historiam Illustrandam. Granada, 44, 2, 2024 p. 351-382.

E-mail: cristiana.pavie@univ-angers.fr

Fanni Svégel is a Ph.D. candidate at Eötvös Loránd University Faculty of Humanities. She is an ethnographer, writing on the history of childbirth and abortion, women experts and violence against women. Her dissertation project The Changing Landscape of Reproduction examines the intersection of medical, political, and cultural influences on reproduction, emphasizing the complex dynamics of state intervention, professionalization, and gender in mid-century Hungary. Her latest publication is: Fanni Svégel, “From ‘Abortion Culture’ to Family Planning. The Continuities and Discontinuities of Birth Control Regimes in 20th Century Hungary”. In: Eds. Heidi Hein-Kircher, Elisa-Maria Hiemer, Denisa Nešt’áková, Challenging Norms: Family Planning as a Reflection of Social Change in Twentieth-Century Eastern Europe. Berghahn Books, 2025: 248–270.

E-mail: svgefanni@gmail.com

Dalia Báthory holds a Ph.D. in International Relations and European Studies from Babes-Bolyai University. She is currently a researcher, expert at the Institute for the Investigation of Communist Crimes and the Memory of the Romanian Exile. Her research interests are history and memory of socialist regimes in Central and Eastern Europe, visual politics and popular communication, humanitarian and developmental aid in Cold War, politics of the Hungarian minority in socialist and postsocialist Romania, history and memory of the Holocaust. Her latest publication is: “Popular Culture Exhibited. New Trends in the Musealisation and Memorialization of the Romanian Socialist Past”, in Monica Ciobanu, Mihaela Șerban Eds., Between the Memory and Post-Memory of Communism in Romania: Fluid Memories, Routledge, 2025.

E-mail: dalia.bathory@iiccmer.ro